

Abstract

Methods and systems for providing a network communication status description based on user characteristics. The techniques receive a status indication
5 from a first networked computer in response to a user's request for information and determine one or more characteristics of the user who issued the request. The techniques provide a status description based on the status indication and the determined characteristics of the user
10 (e.g., a preferred language).

355838.B11